

ChatGPT, Large Language Models and Law

Monday, 3 July 2023

Harry Surden

Professor of Law at the University of Colorado Law School, and Associate Director at the Center for Legal Informatics (CodeX) of the Stanford University

Experience the latest breakthroughs in Artificial Intelligence (AI) with one of the foremost authorities in the field, Professor Harry Surden. With over 20 years of dedicated study, he says, “ChatGPT (and similar technologies) represent one of the biggest leaps in Artificial Intelligence”.

Explore how ChatGPT and Large Language Model (LLM) technologies have revolutionized legal research and drafting for lawyers. But that’s not all – delve into their potential to empower non-lawyers by demystifying the law itself! As a leading expert in the intersection of AI systems like ChatGPT and the law, Professor Surden will share with you his visionary insights.
